

Ganalili Transitional Housing Program

Managed by Yurra

Expression of Interest Form

The Yindjibarndi Aboriginal Corporation has constructed nine transitional housing units and a commercial training facility to enable apprentices and low-income employees' access to suitable, stable, affordable accommodation; and offer a pathway transition to private rental or home ownership.

The Ganalili Transitional Housing Program (GTHP) is a housing and support program for Aboriginal people living in the Roebourne, Wickham or Karratha area. Participants in the program will have affordable rent and access support services to gain independent living skills to improve employment, training, financial capacity and health and well-being. Participants will be required to attend workshops and engage with support services that are recommended to them by the GTHP.

Application to participate in the program is open to all employed Aboriginal people in the local area, however preference will be given to employees of Yurra.

The Ganalili Transitional Housing facility is an alcohol and pet free facility.

Initial application to the program is by submitting this Expression of Interest Form.
